

Cell fate determination

Chao Tang, Peking University

Cells have to make various fate choices/decisions in response to the external and/or internal signals and cues. Examples range from stress response, development, to stem cell differentiation and reprogramming. I will discuss several cases in the effort of elucidating the strategies and design principles in these systems.